EL PASO IS HOST TO THE GRADUATE NURSES OF TEXAS, NOW IN SESSION

The Graduate Nurses' association of Texas is in session in El Paso in the parish house of St. Clement's church, where, in the quietness of stained glass and the cool cloisters, the state's organized Band of Mercy is attending to the routine business of its organization.

The nurses began arriving Monday afternoon and evening and the trains Tuesday brought a number. When the fact is considered that but one nurse from each institution can be excused from duty for the meeting, the attendance at the annual meeting is considered remarkably good. More delegates are expected Tuesday evening for the final sessions Wednesday and the trip to Cloudcroft Thursday.

The first session opened at 9 a. m. Tuesday with an invocation by Rev. Henry Easter, rector of St. Clement's church. Dr. L. G. Witherspoon, of El Paso, delivered the address of welcome. Miss Rhetta Johnson, of Houston, who is president of the state association, responded to this address of welcome on behalf of the state organization. Miss Johnson has been active in the organized work of the graduate nurses of Texas for a number of years. She is a graduate of the city hospital of Indianapolis, Ind., and has been a member of the Graduate Nurses' association since that time. She has been active in her profession, both in San Antonio and Houston. Miss Johnson was elected president at the annual meeting held at Galveston May 5, 1910.

The Work of the Nurses.
In her address, Miss Johnson said: "That there is great value in the effective work of organizations, has been clearly demonstrated. In searching the pages of history we find that all great events, whether political, social or religious, have been achieved through the system of associated power. Wherever there has been a great object to be gained, a design to be executed or a mission on which men have set forth, success has been won because those desiring this object have labored together, uniting in societies, working with one accord, mutually aiding in the combined effort toward the accomplishment of the idea. To this purpose we must attribute our organization; a plan for the upbuilding and advancement of the profession nursing; the elevation of the standard along educational and social lines, to stimulate literary interest, to seek higher ideals and ennoble the workers to come into closer sympathy with each other and to be able to render the best possible service. These should be sufficient reasons why every graduate nurse in Texas should have a part in this association.

Though young in years, we may point with pardonable pride to the accomplishment of much in the way of legislation to secure for Texas nurses the same protection and recognition accorded in other states where the work has been longer established.

"We have done much but let us do more, not let us content with our conditions, let us continue our progress remembering there are greater heights to be attained, a greater proficiency to be sought for and above all a broader spirit of charity and love to be cultivated and these can only be reached through perseverance and labor."

Busy Sessions.
The report of the secretary treasurer was read at the morning session, the minutes of the last meeting at Galveston were read and the all important work of collecting the annual dues was disposed of Tuesday morning. Miss A. Louise Dietrich is acting as secretary of the convention and is being assisted by Mrs. Laura J. Bond.

Tuesday afternoon the visiting and local nurses were entertained at St. Mary's hospital with a reception and tea.

Tuesday evening the El Paso Medical society entertains the nurses with a dancing party at the Elks' club at which the physicians of the city and their wives are the hosts.

The program Tuesday afternoon, mostly technical in its nature, follows: Paper, Miss Allie Brookman, R. N., Temple, Texas.

Paper, "Benefits of Association Membership," A. Louise Dietrich, R. N., El Paso.

Paper, "Why Married Nurses Should Retain Their Membership," Mrs. H. Ingersoll, R. N., Mexico.

Paper, "Conservation and Prevention as Practiced by El Paso," Miss H. Grace Franklin, R. N., El Paso.

Wednesday's Work.
Wednesday will be the final day for the business sessions of the association. The election of officers will occur Wednesday morning and the afternoon session will be in charge of the Texas Hospital association.

A musical program in charge of the music department of the Women's club and under the direction of George Brunner will be given from 3 to 5.

A trolley ride over the city will follow this and the convention proper will close Wednesday evening with a banquet. Thursday the visitors, accompanied by the El Paso members and their friends, will go to Cloudcroft on a special train to spend the day on the mountain top. A lunch will be served them at the new Baby Sanatorium, recently completed.

Wednesday's program follows: First Session, 9 a. m.
Paper, "Report of Delegate to New York," Miss Shackford, R. N., Galveston.

Surprises, secretary.
Report on bill amendment.
Business discussion.
Election of officers and delegate.
